

Mary Dillon is a Chicago-native and business executive with four decades of experience leading consumer-driven businesses in a diverse range of industries, from consumer packaged goods to restaurants to telecom to beauty and retail.

Mary most recently served as CEO and Executive Chair of Ulta Beauty. During her 8-year tenure as CEO, Mary and her team tripled Ulta Beauty's market cap, doubled revenues and transformed the company to become a leading Fortune 500 retailer. Ulta Beauty is the #1 beauty destination for teens and is known for its' associate and guest-centric, values-based, inclusive culture. Mary evolved the company's Board of Directors to become one of the most diverse of any large public company in the nation, and championed the establishment of the Ulta Beauty Charitable Foundation to support women and families.

Mary also serves on the Board of Directors for Starbucks Corporation, KKR, Inc., and Daily Harvest, and is the current Chair of the Economic Club of Chicago.

Mary is a proud first-generation college graduate, and resides in the Chicago area with her husband Terry. They share four adult children and as a family they love adventure travel, tennis, and pickle ball.